Prague Unity Agreement Takes Another Step Forward

The Prague Unity Agreement, signed in May 2002, had as its purpose the unification of the World Championship title. At the present moment, Vladimir Kramnik ( Russia ) claims the “ classical “ world championship, by virtue of his defeating Garry Kasparov ( Russia ) in the match sponsored by BrainGamesNetwork. FIDE on the other hand, was having its annual knockout world chess championships. The 2002 FIDE World Champion is Ruslan Ponomariov ( Ukraine ). So the proposal was adopted by which Kramnik would play a match with the winner of the Dortmund “ candidates “ tournament – which turned out to be Peter Leko ( Hungary ). On the other side of the draw, it was proposed that Ponomariov would play the # 1 rated player, Kasparov. The two winners would then play for the unified FIDE world championship in November 2003.

But problems arose when Ponomariov wanted 2 conditions accepted for him to play Kasparov. One was that in the event of a tie match, the champion, Ponomariov, would retain the title. In the FIDE knockout system, this had been abandoned in favour of tie-breaking rapid games. The second condition was that Ponomariov wanted the faster time control FIDE had introduced into the knockouts, game in 90 min. + 30 sec. increments from move 1. Kasparov was championing a return to the “ classical “ time control of 40 moves in 2 hrs., 20 moves in 1 hr., and sudden death 30 min. The negotiations went forward in fits and starts, and sometimes looked hopeless.

But FIDE and Ponomariov recently announced that they had reached agreement !

Ponomariov backed down on both conditions. The match will be held June 19 to July 7 in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Ponomariov's coming to the table may have something to do with the $ 1 million prize fund. It is not the kind of match one wants to default.

Clockwise from top : Garry Kasparov; Peter Leko; Vladimir Kramnik; Ruslan Ponomariov

But now the other side of the draw is in need of finalization. Einstein Group, who hold the rights to Kramnik's semi-final, have only been able to say that they are still in negotiations with 2 cities for the holding of the event. So obviously there is not yet any date set for this side of the draw. Concern has been expressed that the match must be finalized soon, so that there will be time to arrange the final match for November. Let's hope we are soon advised that this side of the draw is also finalized.

January 2003 FIDE Rating List

Once again, as has been the case since July 2001, only 2 players are over 2800 : # 1 : Garry Kasparov ( Russia ), 13 th FIDE World Champion – 2847, up 9 pts. as a result of his astounding play at the November 2002 Olympiad as Russia's first board; and # 2 : Vladimir Kramnik ( Russia ), 2000 BrainGamesNetwork World Champion – 2807.

There are now 12 players in the 2700's ( up from 10 in the Oct. 2002 list ). # 3 is still Viswanathan Anand ( India ), 2000 FIDE World Champion – 2753; # 4 is Veselin Topalov ( Bulgaria ), up from # 5 – 2743; # 5 is Peter Leko ( Hungary ), the challenger of Kramnik in their semi-final match coming up later this year, up from # 6 – 2736; # 6 is Michael Adams ( England ) – 2734; and # 7 is Ruslan Ponomariov ( Ukraine ), 2002 FIDE World Champion ( only 18 years old ).

1999 FIDE World Champion, Alexander Khalifman ( Russia ) is # 12 – 2702; Judit Polgar ( Hungary ), the world's strongest female player, is # 13 – 2700 ( up from # 18 ). 12 th FIDE World Champion, Anatoly Karpov ( Russia ) is down from # 17 to # 20 – 2688.

Here are a number of the younger players we've been watching : Alexander Grischuk ( Russia ) is # 10 – 2712; Etienne Bacrot ( France ) is # 27 ( up from # 37 ) – 2671; Francisco Vallejo Pons ( Spain ), currently playing in the Linares, Spain supertournament, is # 59 – 2629; Teimour Radjabov ( Azerbaijan ), also playing in Linares, is # 68 – 2624. The number # 100 player is rated 2598.

The two highest rated Canadians with FIDE rating are : GM Kevin Spraggett, former Canadian Champion at 2533 ( October 2002 ); GM Alexandre Le Siege, 2001 Canadian Champion, at 2531 ( October 2002 ).
