K-W Winter Open

(Report by Patrick McDonald on ChessTalk)

This tournament was played at Kitchener City Hall on Feb. 18-20. 66 players participated. Robert Hamilton won the Open Section, while Hal Bond, Wylon Wong, Justin McDonald and Geordie Derraugh all tied at 4/5 to share First place in the U 2000 section. Jamie Singleton and James Lehman shared top spot in the U 1600 section.

The Guelph Team dominated to win the team prize. Robert Hamilton, Hal Bond and Mark Brauer all worked together to push their team past the KW Juniors, St. Catherines, Peel, and Waterloo U. teams.

Aeroflot Open, Moscow

This is the strongest Open in the world, a 9-round swiss and was played Feb. 15 – 23 at the Rossja Hotel, Europe's largest hotel. There were 515 participants in four sections, including 123 GM's. There was a five-way tie for 1st, with Emil Sutovsky winning on tie-break in the top section.

Cappelle La Grande, France

This also is one of the largest swiss opens in the world. It was played Feb. 12 – 19 and is 9 rounds. There were 590 players from 52 countries, including 78 GM's and 62 IM's. The co-winners were IM David Shengelia and GM Michail Brodsky.

Will Bobby Fischer's Problems End Now ?

Bobby Fischer has been languishing in a detention center in Japan now for about ½ a year. He was detained because he was trying to leave Japan on his American passport, which had previously been cancelled by the US government. His crime was to have played Boris Spassky in Yugoslavia in 1992, when the US had a ban on any activities in Yugoslavia. He appealed to Iceland for citizenship, and Iceland has gone part way so far – they have granted him an Icelandic ID, a residency permit and a passport. They are now appealing for Fischer's release to travel to Iceland based on this documentation. If this does not work, the Icelandic parliament will then go on to consider granting him formal citizenship.

History of the Canadian Chess Web Site

(Submitted by David Cohen)

This article explains the origin of my 'Canadian Chess' web site (which is linked from the web site of The Chess Federation of Canada (CFC) - <http://www.chess.ca>):

<http://www.ncf.carleton.ca/~bw998/canchess.html>

Biographies

In 1999, I started my second term as a CFC Governor, having served previously from 1982-7. The CFC was in financial difficulties. A great deal of time and money went to paying for the CFC's international program: paying the expenses of our representatives at FIDE events, such as the Olympiad and the various World Championships. I thought that these pressures could be relieved by obtaining sponsors. I gave some thought to how to obtain a sponsor for our chess events, especially our national championships. My idea was that if we could publicize chess in Canada, then we could attract a sponsor. The theory that I evolved was that if we gathered our history together in one place, then we could present it to the public in general, and to potential sponsors in particular. I thought that we would have better chances with a potential sponsor if we showed that we were an experienced organization (created 1872, organized 77 national championships). So, history, leading to publicity, leading to sponsorship.

Unfortunately, there was a complete lack of effort in this area on the part of the CFC. Certainly this was due in part to their limited staff resources. But it was also due to a failure on the part of CFC staff to recognize the importance of how these simple tasks could help raise awareness of (and, ultimately, money for) chess in Canada. To this day, you still cannot visit the CFC web site and find a listing of our reigning Champions, let alone obtain their photos and some biographical data on the players and their achievements.

This was an obvious gap in my intended efforts to present chess as an attraction to sponsors. We were lacking in media stars, yet we had no shortage of talented players. So, how could I correct this by presenting them to the media? Even simpler, if a reporter, chess or otherwise, wanted a quick biography of a Canadian chess player, there was none available. So, this was my first task: compile a list of important Canadian chess players, along with their most important accomplishments.

After my initial compilation, my web site expanded in three directions: more historical background; direct publicity; and covering for more of the CFC's failures.

Expansion of Historical Background

To complement each player's biographical data, I decided to include the player's best or most memorable game. Many of the players contributed by selecting their own best game. In fact, they were more helpful here than with their biographical data, which was either forgotten or not important to them. Here's the game that gave me this idea: Abe Yanofsky's most famous game, and perhaps the most famous game played by a Canadian.

[Event "Olympiad, Preliminaries, Board 1"]

[Site "Buenos Aires, Argentina"]

Rxe5 Qc7 18. Be4 Bb7 19. Bxb7 Qxb7 20. Qh8+ Ke7 21. Qxg7 Rg8 22. Rxe6+ Kxe6 23. Re1+ Kd6 24. Qf6+ Kc5 25. Re5+ Kc4 26. b3+ Kd3 27. Qd6+ Kc2 28. Re2+ 1-0

I continued to expand the web site with player photos; topics, such as important events that took place in Canada; listings of Canadian chess books and other publications; and polls for feedback from (and involvement of) readers.

Publicity

To obtain direct publicity for us, I thought that chess in Canada could learn from (and be like) other sports. So, I created the Canadian Chess Hall of Fame; the Canadian Chess Player of the Year; and the Canadian Chess Player Top Ranked at Year-end.

CFC Failures

Continued lack of effort by the CFC forced me to compile lists that I thought they should have on their own web site: Canadian Champions; FIDE titles awarded to Canadians; a schedule of major Canadian chess events (to notify journalists well in advance); biographies, accomplishments and photos of members of the CFC Board of Governors; and a list of CFC Certified Tournament Directors.

Future Direction

There's much work still to do: search for more historical information, such as the first references to chess in Canada; search for more biographical information; complete the lists of our Champions; obtain photos which can be published; and find missing cross-tables and games. If you can help, please e-mail me at bw998@freenet.carleton.ca.
